LOYOLA FACES CARLETON IN PREP FOR PLAY-OFF

Loyola College Basketball and Hockey Warriors, fresh from a double capture of the new Coupe de Québec competition, will both play their final games tomorrow night, before heading into the play-offs. Doug Daigneault's red-hot cagers will play host to the Carleton Ravens, leaders of the Eastern section of the OCAA. The Warriors went through their OSL season undefeated, winning 15 straight. With wins on Friday, these two clubs could end up with the best combined records in collegiate hockey and basketball in Canada for the second consecutive year.

The Ravens, have beaten the McGill Redmen twice this year, the latest a 102-99 overtime thriller in Ottawa. Loyola avenged their one-point loss to Carleton in the league championship tilt last season with a 70-55 win earlier this campaign. For sheer excitement it should equal the Carnival game with McGill. The Bytowners are one of the biggest teams physically in the country, lead by 6'5" Denis Shuthe and 6'3" Jim Murray.

Meanwhile, down Kingston way, Dave Draper will be leading his league and provincial champs into town for their last regular season rendezvous, this against RMC. Draper's pucksters came through with a 5-2 triumph over Sir George Williams Wednesday at the Forum to clinch the Coupe de Québec. A win against RMC, who are always tough at home, will give the Montrealers a 16-1-1 league record, 24-4-1 over-all.
